

ATI Process

Referral

Candidates are referred by the assigned ADA, defense attorney, or judge to the ATI Unit for assessment.

Assessment

ATI Unit reviews the case and the defendant's circumstances to determine their eligibility for programming. Felony referrals participate in a clinical evaluation conducted by the Center for Court Innovation (CCI).

Decision

Candidates are accepted or rejected for ATI programming.

Accepted

The defendant pleads guilty and enters programming with the promise of a dismissal, reduced conviction, or reduced sentence upon completion. A defendant may decline to participate.

Not Accepted

The defendant is redirected to another problem-solving court or returned to their original court part for disposition.

Outcome

A defendant completes or fails to complete programming.

Completed

Defendant receives promised resolution to case.

Not Completed

Defendant is sentenced on guilty plea.
